Content Editor

Description

Here at Weed Class, we arm our readers with information about cannabis products, how to consume them, and how stay on the right side of the shifting legal landscape. While we don't claim to provide health or legal advice to our readers, the accuracy of our content is paramount, as we are trying to help our readers navigate these topics.

An editor at WeedClass edits content produced by our writing staff, checking for quality and also accuracy. Edits include grammar, syntax, and spelling, of course, as well as fact checking important stats and assertions to make sure they're well researched. An editor should have an excellent grasp of English, but should also be familiar with the cannabis subject matter, making it easier to spot errors.
